As Shakespeare's Hamlet opined, "The play's the thing," and the thing in the play That Day Is Coming, Every Day Is Coming is cribbage.

As cribbage devotees, we eagerly pounce on any vestige of our beloved game in popular culture. Often our enthusiasm is . . . {continued on page 8}

President's Column

Zero. Zilch. String of Pearls. If you play long enough you're gonna have one of those nights. Or several.

"You have to play through the bad cards," is what Erik Locke tells me.

I had a perfect online card just last night: a perfect 0/9 - 112! That is the first time I have had a string of pearls online. I have played 1,207 online tournaments (not all were nine games), and I have been close (1-8) a few times.

It looked like I had a win in game three. However, a few pegs and a 16-hand gave me a four-point loss. Games four though seven were just beatdowns. The pegging and cuts were not in my favor.

In game eight, I looked like a cribbage player again, I cut into a 20-hand, I tripped, I hit runs and 31-for-4s. But as I entered fourth street with a 40-point lead, I was dealt 5-5-8-8-Q-Q. I tossed 8-8 to my opponent, Jennifer Curnow (jjxfan), and cut a 9.

I lead a 5 and she plays a 9. I think: "Not much of a crib if she held middle cards." I shouldn't've been thinking; the cribbage gods said "it's not your night" one more time. Jennifer had 3-6-6-9-9 for a 14-hand. She also threw 7-7 in her crib, for 24 points!

Now tied and dealing from ten out. I thought this could still be a win. Nope, Jennifer already had a 12-hand and so the pearls added up to eight in a row.

One game to go, and Basil Rudnick (Basil22) was waiting for an easy win. Again I had a great start and big lead heading to fourth street, aka the dead zone, aka two-point-hand land. Basil kept chipping away my lead and hit a timely 16-hand on fourth street. A few pegs and a nice cut put the final pearl on my string.

I have had strings of pearls before, but don't recall that I lost games with thirty-point leads during those strings. At some point it becomes comical. How can I lose this game?

The best thing about a string of pearls or "bad cards" is when they are over! Hope to see you at Grand National in Virginia Beach. Safe travels and good luck!

Great Eight — a hand composed of 6-7-8-9; worth eight points by itself, it can be helped by A, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, or 10 for a maximum count of 16 points —contributed by John DeRosa (Dundee IL)

Super Eight — as above, but with a flush; hit a 6, 7, 8, or 9 for 20 points! — contributed by David Aiken (Coopersville MI)

My four children, non-ACC members, joined me for cribbage on the Alaska Cruise. The ACC players told me how wonderful my kids were. As I knew. My kids told me how welcoming, caring, and helpful the ACC players were. As it should be.

40 Years Ago

Continuing with cribbage news found in Robert Madsen's first magazine, which was a double issue, we learn about the first tentative steps of Grass Roots clubs. Madison—the hometown of the ACC's founding president, Joe Wergin—became

25 Years Ago

The cover reported on the 181-player St. Croix Classic in Turtle Lake WI, sadly now defunct. Elsewhere we read that Emil Chrabaszcz won the 150-player New England Inaugural main in Woonsocket RI.

Play smart, play fair, play fast—but mostly play nice

The longest tennis match in history took place at the 2010 Wimbledon Championships in London. John Isner and Nicolas Mahut began playing at 6:13p local time on June 22 and stopped at 9:07p with the score tied at two sets each. They started the fifth set on June 23 at 2:05p, and play was suspended at 9:09p—with the final set tied at 59 games each.

But wait, there's more! Play resumed on the third day (June 24) at 3:40p, and when it concluded at 4:47p, Isner won the final set by a score of 70–68.

Here are a few of the records that this match set:

- longest match: 11h 5m
- longest set: 8h 11m (the fifth set alone broke the previous record for longest match)
- most games in a set: 138 in the fifth set
- most games in a match: 183
- consecutive service games without break of serve: 168
- most points won in a match: Mahut 502 and Isner 478
- most points in a match: 980

And this record-breaking tennis match has exactly what to do with cribbage?

Well, in cribbage, tennis, to say nothing of life in general, timing is everything. It's often not a matter of what you do, but when you do it.

Look again at the record for "most points won in a match": Mahut won 502 points, and Isner won 478. Wait, what?! Mahut won 24 more points than Isner did, but lost the match? Yep. Because in tennis it's not how many points you score, but when you score them.

So finally, after 258 words, I at last get to cribbage. Which would you rather do in cribbage: lose by 45 points, or hit a 24-hand on fourth street, only to see the dealer peg out before you can count the hand and win the game?

The Inside Track by Rob Medeiros

Here's an interesting hand that I'm going to ask for help from the ACC universe. It is my crib early in the game, and I have A-3-5-7-8-K. Do I toss 7-8 or 5-K? Theoretically I could also keep 3-5-7-8 but that is the weakest of the three holds, in my opinion.

For advocates of the 5-K discard, obviously there are more picture cards in the deck to be tossed into the crib—especially Kings—which would provide us with at least six points. The A-3-7-8 hold also arms us with a "magic 11" and two middles and two lows to combat those types of hands the pone could possess.

For 7-8 discard proponents, this toss allows a better chance of a 12-crib, as the pone is much more likely to throw a middle instead of a low card/picture card combo. The A-3-5-K hold also provides some pegging options, especially if the pone has a picture hand. For instance, on a 10 lead I would play the K, hoping for another picture play making the count 30 and thus empowering my Ace for 31-for-2. I also save my 5 for the last two cards of pegging, so there is a good chance I can outpeg the pone 5–0 in this scenario.

So cribbage friends, I'm looking for your input for this hand.

As for last month's 6-8-8-9 question, the excellent Central Region pegger Andy Stireman gave me a few helpful insights that I'm going to incorporate (though I hope not often, because that hand is still a landmine!).

Rob still needs your input. Contact him at mrob2199@aol.com.

There's nothing quite so frustrating as this second scenario, and that's where timing comes to the fore. As important as it is get big hands, it's more important to get them at the right time!

Good luck with both of these goals—points and timing—as you work your way to qualifying—and winning—Grand National later this month.

strained when it becomes clear that whoever pulled a cribbage board out of the prop box has absolutely no clue how the game is played.

But our ardor can continue unabated with That Day Is Coming, Every Day Is Coming, as its author Cameron Scott (pseudonym) is an ACC member and knows whereof he writes.

Cameron and his readers owe a debt of gratitude to his grandmother for his talent in combining cribbage and the theater. A high school English teacher, she both taught him cribbage and challenged him to excel as a fiction writer.

Cameron sold his first piece of fiction at age nineteen to a local newspaper. He was an undergraduate at New York University and sold a second fiction work to the same paper a few years later. Then followed a thirty-five-year hiatus from writing as real life, marriage, family, and career assumed prominent position.

Inspiration was reignited while sitting on a lift chair during the 2021–22 ski season. The result was Cameron's first play, Uphill, which took less than a week to write. He jokingly describes it in shorthand as "Camus's The Myth of Sisyphus on skis." Having read Uphill, I would add that the play contains dashes of humor leavened by a certain element of darkness echoed throughout.

Uphill was first introduced to the public as a staged reading in September 2022 at the Legacy Theatre Play Reading Festival in Branford CT. It was first performed on stage by the Wilmington (DE) Drama League in February 2023 at its One Act Festival, where it won Best in Festival. As the winning play from Delaware, Uphill was performed at the Eastern States Theater Association Regional One Acts Festival in April 2023, winning Best Actor for its lead character.

While Uphill was making its way into the world, Cameron responded to a request from a theater company for a new, never-performed work by writing his second play in only two and a half days in order to meet their submission deadline. Although this requesting theater company quickly disappears from our story, the resultant radio play about cribbage was selected for production by Open-Door Playhouse, a theater podcast akin to the radio dramas of the 1940s and 1950s. That Day was recorded and released on podcast networks in June 2023.

That Day is a conversation between two older gentlemen during their regularly scheduled cribbage match. Before even touching on its plot and meaning, I bestow this play with the award for most accurate depiction of cribbage in any popular culture medium. Ever.

Cribbage was a foreign land to the play's director and two actors. Although neither had previously played cribbage, the actors' performance is highly credible even to hardened ACC pros, thanks to Cameron's thorough Cribbage 101 lessons. The goal was not for the actors to become good cribbage players but rather for them to portray good cribbage players convincingly.

The education process began with real life via the YouTube recording of the 2017 JPW/ACC Open consolation final pitting Roger Bouchard against Laurie Hardy. This was followed by a ninety-minute discussion between playwright and director on the intricacies of cribbage play. Finally, Cameron wrote a subtext script explaining what each line meant, which he claims was longer than the play itself.

Accolades must also be paid to the production's Foley Artist who, along with the two actors, receives third billing and a head shot. The Foley Artist is responsible for "card sound effects" such as shuffling and snapping cards down on the table. While somewhat ironic as cribbage is not generally viewed as a noisy occupation, it would be rather strange listening to a radio play about cribbage without any ambient noise.

The two protagonists of That Day could easily be ACC members. They fit the membership demographics: aging, male, white. A wager of $100/$200 per game may be a little rich for this author's blood but encompasses the range of side pools offered at competitions. Many ACC members enjoy gaming in general (poker, pai gow, etc.), and quite a few tournaments are held at casinos with all their attractions.

Then there's the language. The cribbage terms used in That Day are accurate, but the play also contains what can be termed offensive language, although nothing that hasn't been heard on occasion at a runof-the-mill cribbage tournament. Such language can be off-putting, but I would strongly urge listeners to delve below the surface for the meanings camouflaged by the explicit dialogue.

To me, the prevalence of cursing at the beginning of the play indicates interaction on a superficial level between the two players. Utilizing such limited vocabulary restricts their ability to communicate but, more importantly, demonstrates a lack of desire to do so in any meaningful way.

It is therefore that much more impactful when the conversation expands from routine card play to life matters. Casual cursing disappears as the players try to convey strong feelings, and what cursing is used is more on target with its emphasis.

That Day utilizes the format of a game basically unknown to the younger generation to address the issues and concerns of the aging generation that does play cribbage: death, loss, and physical incapacity.

The lines that affected me the most addressed the difficulty of how to live life in the face of death:

At the club. The older guys. When they stop coming, when they stop playing, we don't talk about it. (pause) We just stop talking about them. (pause) We just stop. (pause) Like they'd never been there. (pause) And they never come back. (pause) And we just stop talking about them.

That day is coming. It is coming for all of us. And maybe it is coming a little sooner for those of us in the ACC, given our age. But that age does not diminish our courage in confronting the philosophic issues presented in Cameron's play.

After scoring the most downloads of a debut play on the Open-Door Playhouse site, That Day is heading down under to Queensland, Australia. The Yeppoon Little Theatre will present it for "Script in Hand" on local public radio.

Closer to home, The Road Theatre Company (North Hollywood CA) will present a Cameron Scott double bill in January 2024 with staged readings of both That Day and Uphill.

After the rare, fleeting, and impressively inaccurate portrayals of cribbage scattered across various media, it is a welcome pleasure to discover one that faithfully depicts the game we love and unflinchingly addresses the concerns we face.

Mary loves playing cribbage and her husband occasionally refers to her as a drama queen, so she is well qualified to write this article combining cribbage and the theater.

To listen to the play online, go to theatrely.com and type "That Day Is Coming" in the search box. This play contains explicit language, which may be offensive to some listeners.

IN MEMORY OF CRIBBAGE FRIENDS

Ken Goss

Ken Goss died on August 20. A large and imposing man, Ken was a retired first responder and firefighter. He had a heart of gold and played the game well. He will be missed by his wife, Peggy, and his friends. He is probably playing cribbage above us with his brother Jim, also a good cribbage player.

Kent Edward Hanson

Kent Hanson was born in Los Angeles CA in 1949. After high school, he learned the carpenter trade, obtained his general contractor's license, and was self-employed as a general contractor until he retired just a few years ago. Very proud of his Danish heritage, Kent was active in many Danish clubs in Southern California, as well as the Danish Lutheran Church. Kent's great interest was baseball, as a player, coach, and unofficial scout. He loved music and used to play guitar; he wrote beautiful lyrics to his own melodies. He loved traveling (especially Denmark and Hawaii). He loved cribbage so much that he purposely scheduled knee surgery after the ACC Open in June, just so he and his brother Howard could attend. Kent was always ready for a good party and would never say no to a trip to the casino. Most importantly, he loved spending time with family. Kent lived by the motto: "Do your best—then don't worry, be happy!" He was a kind and generous person and will be missed by all who knew him.

John Noblet

John Noblet passed away peacefully at home at age ninety-five on June 8. John was a longtime member of Cribbage Critters in Springfield VA, beginning his play with that group in 1990 and was active until a month before his death. John was just shy of status when he died. He learned cribbage from a high-school friend's father in Fairhaven MA in the 1940s, and it carried with him through his thirty-six years in the Navy Reserves (Seabees). His favorite tournament was the National Open, but he traveled from Reno to Deadwood to Mount Washington to play the game he enjoyed so much, earning 1,981 MRPs—just 19 points shy of his Master rating—during his play. Summer vacationing along the New England coastline with Doris, his wife of seventy-two years, was augmented with trips to Solomons Island MD for camping, crabbing, and fishing. He is survived by Doris and a daughter and two sons. A very challenging player, John will be sorely missed by all who enjoy cribbage.

Ruling Points by Keith Widener

Too Many Cards?

A few years ago I attended a tournament at the Mill Casino in North Bend OR, which is located on the southern coast near Coos Bay. This was followed by a string of tournaments up the coast in Newport and Lincoln City. What a beautiful drive it is! My wife Leshia took lots of pictures and said that every turn is like a postcard. Put this on your bucket list!

While playing in the tournament, I was the pone and the dealer dealt me six cards. After we picked up our hands and started sorting them, he stated that he had too many cards and placed them on the deck and began shuffling. This action was done in a smooth and rapid fashion and I never had the chance to verify that he did in fact have too many cards. I knew this person very well and I totally trust that he would not cheat me in any fashion, but what if I didn't know them? What should I have done?

Rule 4.4a(3) states: If either player was dealt the wrong number of cards . . . , there shall be a redeal by the same dealer. The player with the wrong number of cards must allow the opponent to confirm the error. If the player does not, . . . the offender is assessed a backward penalty equal to ten points or enough to put both pegs "off the board," whichever is less. If the applicable backward penalty is less than ten points, the opponent is awarded points equal to the difference.

This is the second largest penalty in the rulebook, with the largest being the false-claim-of-game penalty. I am certain that when this penalty was decided by the Rules Committee they probably had some incidents of players claiming to have too many cards in order to get a new deal, so in order to discourage this and protect the integrity of the game they came up with this punishing penalty.

The lesson here is to be open and honest. Before you take any actions make sure your opponent knows what is going on. Play fair and nice, and remember, let's all have fun!

Keith Widener is head of the ACC's judge program. Send questions about rules and the rulebook to Keith at kwidener@triad.rr.com.

Although Yours Truly has never personally experienced what I'm told is the "terrible twos," I have my own version. At Pahrump in game 22, I was sitting on a 27 playing Steve Bird (Pahrump NV). Counting first and needing six points to get out, win, and turn in a 29 card, I was dealt 3-4-6-7-10-J. I tossed the 10-J and a 3 was cut. Two pegs, two count, two short, too little, too late, too bad. Voilà, high nonqualifier. Is "high nonqualifier" the worst sobriquet in cribbage? It is for my money.

Speaking of the Pahrump Open, the recently concluded tournament was director Denise Fortin's swan song as she and hubby Mike are pulling up stakes and moving to the Smokey Mountain area sometime around the first of the year. Denise was the founding director of both Club 360 and the Pahrump Open. She also directed the one-day January tournament held in Henderson NV. Carla Jameson (Pahrump) has agreed to take on the directorship of Club 360, while Bill Eilers and K. C. Carder (both Pahrump) will take over the January one-dayer. Still to be determinized is who, if anyone, will take on the Pahrump Open. We all wish Denise and Mike bon voyage and happy trails as they begin their new life next year. A job (or several) well done in Pahrump.

In the playoffs for those fortunate enough to qualify (unlike myself), the finals turned into (Arizona) Ladies Day with high qualifier Darlene Stier (Sun City) playing Carol Perko (Sun City West). In as tough a match as you might imagine these two tough Arizonians playing, Carol prevailed.

I should have mentioned last month that, since Jim Jones (all 88 years and counting) won the Socal Open/Norm Nikodym Memorial as well as the Burbank Bombers Tournament in February, he is the undisputed champion of Los Angeles County even though he lives in Orange County. Sadly, LA County is down to two tournaments a year. Jim copped both of them.

Over and Out.

Vicki's Cribbage Vibes

Stories about Cribbage on the Eastern Seaboard

by Vicki Soule * soule1994@comcast.net *

October is here! Grand National month and winter (if you live in New England) is around the corner. Trees changing, shorter days, and frost and flakes soon!

Durham was home to the third annual John Medeiros Memorial in steamy North Carolina! Hosted by John's daughter and board member Jennifer Johnson, the tournament had 100% payback! They took a long lunch break on Saturday so players could say good bye to Dorothy "Dot" Davis, who was a fixture in North Carolina cribbage for decades. The service was wonderful, and more than a dozen players attended. On Saturday night, they needed one player to make Canadian Doubles even, so the Doubletree bartender, Kris Fischlein, stepped in to make the tournament work. He was rewarded, as he and Shane Lewis came in first! With 42 peggers in the main, John Morch took first and Sandra Shrum was second. In the 26-player consolation, local Larry Phifer came in first with Laurie Schmitz in second. Laurie and Sandy travel and hang out together. I think they had something up their sleeves, both finishing second. They will never tell their secrets!

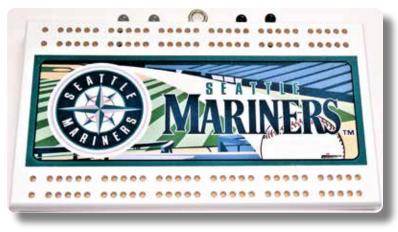

Moving up to Brookline NH on September 10, directors Jerry and Laurie Hardy welcomed 102 players to the twenty-third Daniel Webster Open. ↑ Jerry had the high qualifying card with 22/9 +163. I sat two seats down from him and told him he took all the good cards out of the decks as I followed. In the end, Donna LaFleur fought the good fight to first place while Kate Fuller came in second. The consolation saw 56 players stay for more fun. Some did not want to go home and watch the Patriots, however, many phones had the football game on! If you saw the Facebook post, you know how it ended. Mark Soule took the win over his wife, aka me, Vicki Soule. It was a long-fought battle and a quiet ride home. However, being the banker in the family, I got the better deal. ← Like I said, doesn't every cribbage player want to win? For those going to Virginia Beach, travel safe and see you there!

I can't change the direction of the wind, but I can adjust my sails to always reach my destination.

Cribbage Board of the Month BY JAY FULWIDER

this column featured two football cribbage boards.
I noted that fall is the start of football and my favorite season. I didn't mean to dismiss the fact that fall is also the end of baseball season and the start of the playoffs.

As I am writing this, my team, the Seattle Mariners, are in first place in their division. My hope is that when you receive your October Cribbage World, the Mariners will be in the playoffs.

This Mariners board was made by Rico Industries Inc. Just about any team cribbage board can be found at team stores or online. Some boards are more intricate and feature the ball-park the team plays in. You can Goggle "sports team cribbage boards" and find your team board. Also, check out etsy.com for a variety of very nice, handcrafted boards.

Jay Fulwider collects cribbage boards in picturesque Washington State, where he also enjoys golf, fishing, and racquetball. His philosophy on the key to life: "Just keep your pegs moving." Ideas for and questions about this column may be sent to budandotis@msn.com (put "Cribbage Board" in the subject line).

also very much enjoy the social aspects of the game. It's all so much fun!

Do you have a favorite cribbage memory?

I think my favorite memory is playing in the Paradise Grass Roots club before the fire. Everyone was so nice to me, and I especially enjoyed getting to know the people who lived in the community.

Dan Zeisler is founder of Sierra Youth Cribbage Tournament. Send info about youth cribbage to 530.263.7468 or danthefan@yahoo.com.

GAME ON by Dan Zeisler

Elite Junior Cribbage Player Nick Plowman (Paradise CA, age 14)

Nick became the youngest ACC judge at nine years of age. Nick genuinely cares about teaching youth cribbage and has already taught many youngsters the game.

When did you learn to play cribbage?

I learned when I was six years old going into first grade. I played every day with my dad for about thirty minutes. It probably took at least six months to actually play a full game. Once I reached this point, I felt good enough about my game to enter my first sanctioned tournament in Sacramento. I was seven at the time.

Who taught you how to play? My dad, Allen Plowman.

Do you play in a Grass Roots club?

When I was eight, I played in the Paradise Club in northern California. When the fire hit our community, that kind of ended the club as we knew it. Two years later in 2020, I helped instigate the revival of the club and then Covid hit. Right now, I really don't play much in Grass Roots.

I've played in several sanctioned youth tournaments, including the Sierra Youth Tournament, the Memorial Tournament in Sacramento, and a youth tournament I put on in Paradise. I've also played in all four Youth Grand Nationals. I almost always make the playoffs, but have never secured a first-place trophy in a main event. I've also entered several adult tournaments, including the ACC Open in Reno, the Grand National in Lincoln City (where I won the Youth consolation), and tournaments in Sacramento and Oroville.

What's your favorite part of cribbage? I just love getting really good hands! I

by David Aiken ~ with lots of help from John Quist ~

With the Around the World Cruise and Cribbage Competition now behind them, John and Maria Quist jumped right back into ACC cribbage with the Gem State Classic in Boise ID. Before we learn about their success there, here are their final ATW stats (plus boxes on facing page):

	game points	games won	spread points
Maria	√ 125	√ 61	√ +97
John	107	52	-97

The ACC family treated John and Maria like returning heroes after their cruise and feted them to a sumptuous dinner. John writes: "We couldn't have asked for a better return. Everyone welcomed us back warmly, saying that they enjoyed our stories. Then Maria continued her hot streak, winning her first six games on a seven-game card."

John apparently also learned enough from Maria during the cruise so that he can now hold his own in competitive cribbage! Here's how the Quistlings did in Boise:

- Friday Early Bird: Maria placed fifth
- Friday Canadian Doubles: the Quist team finished third
- Saturday Main: John qualified and finished third
- Sunday Consy: Maria qualified and finished third

But now back to ATW. Maria beat John soundly, but he did manage to win two continents (see box on facing page). Cribbage World recently learned that John has filed the legal paperwork to set up the Asia Cribbage Congress (ACC) and the Antarctica Cribbage Congress (ACC) in those locations.

What's on tap for future Quist travels? After Boise, they travel to Manila for Maria's mother's birthday. Next they head to Kentucky to attend a wedding. Then to Sweden for John's mother's birthday. They plan to play the TOC and ACC Open in Reno next March. And another wedding will take them to Italy in May.

CW thanks John and Maria for entertaining ACC members with tales of their travels over the past year.

Wherever they wander in the future, you can be sure that their cribbage board will go with them!

Element3 Health Update

by Sandy Sands

t's the beginning of a new Grass Roots Season. Now is a great time for your club to engage with Element3 Health. Element3 Health remains a viable option for clubs with eligible members to report monthly cribbage related activity (Grass Roots play, ACC online play, playing at home with a spouse or friend, ACC meetings, playing cribbage apps, etc.) and to have their ACC and Grass Roots dues reimbursed. Any monies received after those have been reimbursed are allowed to be used for the overall benefit of the Grass Roots Club or the ACC.

Nearly twenty Grass Roots clubs are currently participating and realizing benefits for their eligible members and for their clubs. We have also added members who play only online or are part of the Traveler's Club. For members in this category, after their dues are reimbursed, any eligible activity reimbursement benefits ACC initiatives. For firsthand feedback about the benefits, feel free to talk to the Boise ID Grass Roots club.

Enhancements and simplification to the reporting process continue to be made and will be made available when they are finalized.

Element3 Health continues to honor what was originally a time-limited offer for clubs to receive $100 for use in whatever manner they see fit in supporting or enhancing their Grass Roots club experience.

For more information or technical assistance, contact Sandy Sands at now4sands@msn.com or Diana Banuelos at diana.banuelos@element3health .com or contact Element3 Health at 833.906.1700.
